OWNER'S CLINIC FOLLOW-UP

What the Liberty Forge assessment process looks like

Assessment before implementation. Every time. We listen before proposing, and a person stays in the lead at every step. This page is a plain map of the assessment itself, not a build plan.

01 Pre-assessment. You fill out a short self-check: data, tools, people, permissions, and goals. It tells us what to listen for, and what must never leave your custody.

02 Discovery visit. We sit with you and your people, walk the operation, and map where hours actually go. We look at the paperwork burden worth attacking, and what to leave alone.

03 Findings. We write down what we saw: where the work is, where the data lives, who can see what, and where the risk is. You should be able to recognize your own week in it.

04 Written recommendations. You get a plan you own: what to do, what to leave alone, and what a later build would look like if you want one. The recommendations stay yours.

05 You decide whether to build. There is a clear decision gate. You may hire us to build, hand the plan to your own people, or wait. Nothing is built until you say so.

HUMAN IN THE LOOP

The AI drafts. The human decides. Nothing binding (a price, a promise, a posting, or a payment) leaves without an owner's yes, during the assessment and in any later build.

The floor under every engagement is the four non-negotiable commitments: data sovereignty; zero blue-collar layoffs; human-in-the-lead; and in-house, client-specific models.
